The LugeCubes Provide Modular Ice Luge Design

Try something different

Everyone likes to go and have a drink every once in a while. However, as much fun as they can be, shots do get boring at some point. So why not try something new? Targeted probably for frat houses so as to provide a new entertainment option, the LugeCubes from Quirky is a modular ice luge kit that comes with three custom mold designs and of course a drinking spout. Why not put the drink in the ice, rather than the ice in the drink?

Please deposit the standard shot glasses in their storage shelf, now you can enjoy the Ultimate Liquor Run. Using the durable ice luge molding system, you can build and customize your very own ice luge design. The cube trays were sketched with compact size and split personality in mind - compact cubes that split into two halves to save storage space in the freezer - not to mention that these will take all the space anyway.

Getting past filling and freezing the trays, the enclosed tubular luge design was developed so that the drinker can see the liquor traveling through the ice, from the top and all the way to the drinking spout. Speaking of the drinking spout - this component was developed to be removable and reusable, so that you can take it off and clean it between drinkers. I know, one more thing you have to take care of, as a host, but better a hassle than H1N1 spread.

If the spout may be considered a hassle, mind that the LugeCubes modular ice luge comes with an assembly instruction booklet that is featured with pictures only, therefore no reading is required. If this concept tickles you in any way, know that you can submit online for a $22.47 price tag and add to the pre-sale threshold the product needs to reach to go into production. Also, mind that your credit card won't be charged until the product reaches that threshold.
